Moróro presents three new outdoor objects and the collaboration with Alain Monnens

Ultra-slim garden lighting, a mobile table lamp and an outdoor bench for two: Moróro starts the new year with the launch of no less than three new outdoor objects. For the design of two-seater Paulo, the Belgian outdoor label turned to the renowned Belgian designer Alain Monnens. The two found each other in Moróro's refined design language and the interplay between material and function.

With the new outdoor bench PAULO you can enjoy your garden, terrace or outdoor space in intimate company. True to Moróro's design DNA, Paulo is both robust and refined: stainless, stable and lightweight thanks to its aluminium manufacturing, but also with an ultra-slim and refined design. The design comes from Belgian designer Alain Monnens. "We were perfectly on the same wavelength," says Veerle Lapierre from Moróro. "Paulo is more than just a garden bench. It is also an object and an eye-catcher. Already at the first meeting this became very clear to everyone." With Luz, Moróro launches its first light object. The black, matt anodized garden lighting stands out for its ultra-slim, sleek design with a unique ribbed structure in the lampshade. Luz blends into any type of garden and comes in two versions. There is Luz with base for all those who are looking for a mood design lamp to combine on your terrace with your favourite outdoor furniture and there is Luz with impale, which you can easily and firmly push into the grass. Luz works with an LED lamp, a movable lampshade with a 26 degree beam angle and a cord that is cleverly positioned and discretely bridges the distance to your first electricity point.

SAUL, on the other hand, is a mobile outside light. Equipped with a durable battery, you can easily take these mini garden lights with you through your garden: from your outdoor table on the terrace to your favourite spot, hidden far away in the greenery. Saul is 15 cm high and easy to carry but still weighs enough to remain stable in all weather conditions. The LED light brings soft atmospheric light wherever needed and typically Moróro, Saul was also manufactured with unique details giving the design a playful touch. The base of this black, matte anodized table lamp surprises with a subtle ribbed structure and a lampshade that can be turned in three different light directions.

ABOUT MORÓRO

Moróro stands for Belgian designs inspired by Brazilian architecture in terms of style and choice of materials. This is also made clear by the name, a reference to one of the houses designed by Brazilian architect Marcio Kogan. Moróro refers to a mix of robustness, refinement and warmth. Think of an abundant natural landscape and you are guaranteed a sultry summer. Behind the brand is a couple of Flemish entrepreneurs having international ambitions with very personal designs.
